Source: Shenzhen Xinhaiwen Technology Co., Ltd. | Published on: 2020-07-07 14:27

Brushless motor refers to brushless DC motor, which consists of motor, main body and driver. It is a typical mechatronics product. Brushless motor is an upgraded product, and its life performance is better than brushed motor. However, its control circuit is relatively complex, and the requirements for aging screening of components are relatively strict. Although the motor has a long life, the control circuit is prone to malfunction. Therefore, the selection of brushless motors must undergo strict reliability tests to ensure quality. However, with the continuous upgrading of technology, brushless motor technology has become quite mature.
