With more than 4.4 billion pounds of used cooking oil (UCO) generated by commercial kitchens every year, it's easy to wonder how the disposal of so much material could impact the environment, especially when done  properly. Commercial kitchens and restaurants are looking for more sustainable ways to operate as consumers are placing a higher value on sustainability. So, what solutions are available?

At DAR PRO Solutions, our purpose is to repurpose, as we believe that recycling is essential to diverting waste from landfills, composting and incineration. We offer impactful sustainability solutions for the food service industry through our expertise in collecting and recycling used cooking oil (UCO). The UCO we collect goes on to be transformed into valuable ingredients for renewable fuel and other household items, such as soaps and beauty products, pet food, industrial lubricants and oil for lamps – all while helping keep customer kitchen operations running smoothly.

There are a multitude of sustainability benefits to recycling used cooking oil through DAR PRO Solutions. Repurposing the oil helps prevent waste contamination in water sources and in the food supply and lessen the burden on landfills.

Working with DAR PRO Solutions is the easiest way to safely dispose of used cooking oil so it can be recycled into other products and uses. With decades of expertise in UCO management, DAR PRO Solutions is proud to be the preferred partner of restaurants nationwide, offering top-tier UCO collection and recycling services. Our advanced systems are designed with safety and efficiency in mind, ensuring kitchens run smoothly while minimizing waste.

We provide tailored solutions that meet the unique demands of kitchens of all sizes, and with our UCO collection service, we will minimize disruption to kitchen operations by coordinating collective service at times that work best for customers.
