Dear Sirs,

HVO originating in the USA , Investigation AS0067

Further to our previous submissions, and in addition to the UKIFDA response, we know you are finalising your thoughts on countervailing measures and the SEF. Please may we just re-enforce a few important points.

- 1) HVO is a biofuel but not really a bio diesel, it is manufactured in a different way and holds a different chemical molecular structure. It can be used in many other ways other than bio diesel / Fame.
- 2) The TRA previously recognised and stated that US HVO could be an ideal solution to satisfy a future "heating sector" demand and this may prove to be even more important now that the Government has launched the consultation "Exploring the role of alternative clean heating solutions" and is currently seeking public views and due to close on the 10th of February.
- 3) The successful trials/demonstration of HVO in the heating sector are still ongoing and our trials in Cornwall and especially the HVO village of Kehelland, clearly evidenced that this fuel works extremely well and could prove to be the first choice for consumers wanting to decarbonise.
- 4) In order for this heating decarbonisation to happen it would be prohibitive for any additional costs to be added US HVO that would impact the UK consumer.

We urge you to make the right recommendation.

Directors of Mitchell & Webber
